All guests are advised to check with their travel agent or appropriate Government authority to determine the necessary documents. Mobility and Medical Conditions. Guests who have medical condition(s) or mobility restrictions that may require accommodation during their journey must provide full details during the booking process to ensure their needs and requirements can, when possible, be met. Not all itineraries sold by GCRC are suitable for all guests. Our Vacation Consultants can advise of the suitability of itineraries depending on needs of individual guests. Guests who require assistance must be accompanied by another guest who is able to provide all the assistance required (our staff cannot provide such assistance). Rocky Mountaineer reserves the right to refuse guests carriage if they are not accompanied by a guest able to provide the required assistance, and Rocky Mountaineer will not be responsible for any associated losses, costs or expenses. In the rare event that Rocky Mountaineer onboard hosts or management determine that a guest's behaviour, health, or mental condition could be detrimental to the operation of the journey or to other guests, or poses a risk to the safety and security of other guests or to the onboard team, or is in violation of any applicable regulation or law, we reserve the right to detain those guests. Guests who are detained for such reasons will be responsible for their own transportation to the next stop on their journey and no refund or compensation will be offered, including without limitation for any missed components of their journey.
